

A woman you should know: Praisie Dlamini had never tasted wine when she decided to become a winemaker

2015-08-07 12:02

Assistant red-winemaker from Zonnebloem wines tells Jennifer Sanasie about her journey working as a woman in the wine industry. Watch.

Dlamini had never tasted wine when she decided to take a bursary in wine making and study at Elsenburg Agricultural College in Stellenbosch.

On tasting wine for the first time, Dlamini says, "it was horrible!" Watch Dlamini tell us about tasting wine for the first time, she also weighs in on what it's like to be a black woman working in the wine making industry:

